DARKLEAF

copper plates on her keel were peeling off, many seams were open and she was loose at every joint.

June 11, 1864, The Alabama anchored in the harbor of Cherbourg. Semmes wanted a drydock job. But Captain Winslow of the USS Kearsarge was at hand. He pushed up to wait outside the Cherbourg harbor. June 19, 1864, The Alabama came out to fight the Kearsarge. It was a mistake in judgment. The Kearsarge was in better shape, and soon condition paid off...even as it did later with the footsoldiers at Appomattox.

The battle lasted an hour and ten minutes and The Alabama went down. Semmes was rescued and became a hero. But after the war was ended, the United States put in claims for damages done by the English-built Confederate ship, and a final settlement was made in which England paid the U. S. $15 million. But some Northerners claimed the damage should have been two billion. Biggest result of "The Alabama Claims" was to define the role of a neutral in a major war and thus set up for all time a standard beyond which a so-called neutral could not go. But Southerners still love to retell the wonderful stories of Semmes and his British-built ship. The Alabama, which caused more consternation than many of the land battles of the never-to-be-forgotten War Between the States.

METHODIST CIRCLE MEETING

Circle No. 4 of the Memorial Methodist Church will meet with Mrs. Rachel Lawson, Wednesday, April 20, at 7:30 P. M.

IN MEMORY

In sad but loving memory of my dear father, Aurelious A. Baldwin, who died 8 years ago today, April 12, 1947.

Your useful life has ended,
Your gentle spirit has flown,
To dwell in peace forever.
In that bright and heavenly home.
The beautiful things you did for me,
Live within my heart each day,
Though you have passed away,
I think of you as one who sleeps,
All free from grief and pain.
And know the happy day will come,
Where we shall meet again.
—Sadly missed by Daughter.

IN MEMORIAM

MARTIN—In memory of dear husband and daddy, Thomas M. Martin, who left us four year ago, on Friday, April 13th.

Remembrance is a golden chain,
Death tries to break, but all in vain;
To have, to love, and then to part,
Is the greatest sorrow of one's heart.

The years may wipe out many things,
But this they wipe out never—
The memory of those happy days,
When we weer all together.
—Sadly missed by Wife,
Children and Grandchildren.

IN MEMORY

In memory of Charlie E. Marshall, who died April 15, 1953.

Time may heal the broken hearted;
Years may make the wound less sore;
But it cannot fill the longing
For the loved one gone before.

Who shall say the grief is lessened,
Tho' the smile may hide the tears;
Memories keep the wound still open
Despite the parsing of the years.

The Appomattox Farmers Supply Co.

is under new ownership. Since 1849 this company has filled a much needed place in this community and trading area. It was the first establisment in Appomattox to offer a complete Grinding and Mixing service for modern feeding of livestock and poultry, and a modern Seed Cleaning Service; also the first to offer a Drive-In Store.

The new management promises a continuation of these services and still others. The same personnel is empoyed and we expect to serve the public in a very real way in the future as in the past.

One of the new owners has been employed by a major feed company for the past ten years and is familiar with livestock and poultry nutrition, the farmer and his problems. He will manage the new operation, and he will be available for all services and consultations. The other owner has been in this county for the past 30 years and while with the H. M. Burge Co. served most of the farmers of the county. He is a farmer and a rather large grower of poultry, which accounts for the largest cash segament of the agricultural income in the state.

We want and appreciate your business, and your cooperation, and we think we have a service for you. Make our store your headquarters in your county seat, for

Good Farming News

New Bulletin Available

"Minerals for Meat Animals" is a new bulletin that may be had by writing or calling the County Agent's office.

This publication describes some of the mineral elements and calls attention to possible shortages. Its main purpose, however, is to keep farmers from using wrong supplements and wasting money on useless materials.

April Busy Month For Poultrymen

April is a double-barreled month in poultry production.

County Agent Jim Smith says not only must the young chicks, the replacement pullets of the future, be properly cared for, but the laying flock must be kept in heavy production.

For young chicks, continue to feed starting mash until the birds are three to four weeks old. Scratch that the birds are still laying. Often three weeks of age.

Keep the litter dry to help prevent coccidiosis, and other troubles.

In the laying flock, check to see that the birds are still laying. Often, birds that begin laying early in the fall stop by early spring. With low egg prices and fairly good prices for hens, it is often more profitable to market hens that have slowed down in egg-laying. Sometimes when broody hens are handled properly they get back into production and make a profit, but on most farms the most profitable practice is to market the hens as soon as they go broody.

Pea Aphids Increase IN Alfalfa Fields

Pea aphids hold the limelight this week in the insect world in Virginia.

Jim Smith, County Agent, says reports from entomologists indicate that pea aphids are increasing in alfalfa fields all over the state, and likely will cause economic damage within one to two weeks. He advises checking alfalfa fields before treatment. Control materials are ½ pound of technical grade malathion, or 1/4 pound of technical grade parathion or lindane per acre. If these materials are used, wait three weeks after treatment before harvesting or feeding the alfalfa.

REFORESTATION AND FOREST MANAGEMENT

During 1952, 2,494 fires burned a total of 111,571 acres in Virginia and in 1953, 2,461 fires burned 32,762 acres. As of August 1, 1954 1,724 fires burned 14,178 acres.

The number of acres burned are steadily decreasing. However, there is still a long way to go, since there are 15,300,000 acres, or 60 per cent of the total land area of Virginia is commercial forest land. Of this number of acres over 53 per cent are owned by farmers, 29 per cent by other small owners, 11 per cent by state and federal governments, and about 7 per cent by industry.

There are six State Forest operated by the Virginia Forest Service.
